Distinctive Spaces

From Empty Nest to Lavish Refuge

A place to relax and unwind, a dated bathroom is transformed into an important living spot

The bathroom has become the one room in the house where serenity abounds. Just ask Jonas Weiner and his wife, Sharon, who recently embarked on a renovation to turn a 1980's post-modern pink bathroom into their personal sanctuary. "It's really our living space, our spot," said Weiner. The spa-like amenities lure you into the luxurious 21-ft. x 14-ft. footprint overlooking picturesque Blue Heron Lake.

"The kids have grown up. We're empty nesters now and each other's best buddy. At the end of the day, we come home, fill up the tub or turn on the steam. And because my wife is a sports buff, we turn on the TV—there's always a game on—and relax,” said Weiner.

The couple wanted to create an environment where they could unwind and enjoy one another’s company. The dual seat whirlpool tub and integral side bench allows the couple to easily converse after a long day. “The bath for us is like sitting on the sofa,” remarked Weiner. Other highlights include his and hers vanities, customized shower settings and separate toilet bidets. It’s a lifestyle that Weiner encourages other empty nesters to emulate.

Jonas Weiner is co-owner of Best Plumbing Tile & Stone with locations in Scarsdale, Yorktown and Stamford, CT. For more information or to find inspiration for your next project, please visit www.bestplg.com.
